

Name Entity Recognition and Webscraping for Products

In this Jupyter Notebook, I will extract product names from raw text. The raw text will be produced by web scraping, in the cleanest format possible. This project has 2 main parts:

1. Web scraping multiple links (704 in total), only if they contain relevant text and if the page can be accessed; if they do, they will be appended into a list called `df_contents`, each element `[0],[1],...,[1]`, having a successfully web-scraped web page clean text.
2. Performing Name Entity Recognition for each of the extracted web-page texts, and extracting the products for each page in a new list called `product_list`. This will be done using `spacy` library and pre-trained models/

Defining functions for extracting relevant data from web-pages without gibberish

Here I am defining functions that will remove any gibberish from the extracted text, such as html, style scripts, scripts, any head, meta, etc.

The first function, `tag_visible()` defines the web-page elements that should be excluded from the extraction.

The second function `text_from_html` extracts the web-page content and filters the web-page elements defined in the `tag_visible()` function.

Finally, I test if the extraction is done correctly, and only the text I require (clean text) remains.

tags that should be filtered from the extracted text
def tag_visible(element):
    if element.parent.name in ['style', 'script', 'head', 'title',
    'meta', '[document]']:
        return False
    if isinstance(element, Comment):
        return False
    return True

function that filters any tags we mentioned in the previous function, from the text on the web-page
def text_from_html(body):
    soup = BeautifulSoup(body, 'html.parser') texts = soup.findAll(string=True) visible_texts = filter(tag_visible, texts) return u" ".join(t.strip() for t in visible_texts)

#testing if the function extracts relevant text only
html = urllib.request.urlopen('https://www.artificialintelligence-news.com/2023/11/20/microsoft-recruits-former-openai-ceo-sam-altmanco-founder-greg-brockman/').read() print(text_from_html(html))

Microsoft recruits former OpenAI CEO Sam Altman and Co-Founder Greg Brockman

AI experts don't stay jobless for long, as evidenced by Microsoft's quick recruitment of former OpenAI CEO Sam Altman and Co-Founder Greg Brockman. Altman, who was recently ousted by OpenAI's board for reasons that have had no shortage of speculation, has found a new home at Microsoft. The announcement came after unsuccessful negotiations with OpenAI's board to reinstate Altman. I deeply regret my participation in the board's actions. I never intended to harm OpenAI. I love everything we've built together and I will do everything I can to reunite the company. – Ilya Sutskever (@ilyasut) November 20, 2023

Microsoft CEO Satya Nadella – who has long expressed confidence in Altman's vision and leadership – revealed that Altman and Brockman will lead Microsoft's newly established advanced AI research team. Nadella expressed excitement about the collaboration, stating, "We're extremely excited to share the news that Sam Altman and Greg Brockman, together with colleagues, will be joining Microsoft to lead a new advanced AI research team. We look forward to moving quickly to provide them with the resources needed for their success." I'm super excited to have you join as CEO of this new group, Sam, setting a new pace for innovation. We've learned a lot over the years about how to give founders and innovators space to build independent identities and cultures within Microsoft, including GitHub, Mojang Studios,... – Satya Nadella (@satyanadella) November 20, 2023

The move follows Altman's abrupt departure from OpenAI. Former Twitch CEO Emmett Shear has been appointed as interim CEO at OpenAI. Today I got a call inviting me to consider a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity: to become the interim CEO of @OpenAI . After consulting with my family and reflecting on it for just a few hours, I accepted. I had recently resigned from my role as CEO of Twitch due to the birth of my... – Emmett Shear (@eshear) November 20, 2023
Altman's role at Microsoft is anticipated to build on the company's strategy of allowing founders and innovators space to create independent identities, similar to Microsoft's approach with GitHub, Mojang Studios, and LinkedIn. Microsoft's decision to bring Altman and Brockman on board coincides with the development of its custom AI chip. The Maia AI chip, designed to train large language models, aims to reduce dependence on Nvidia. While Microsoft reassures its commitment to the OpenAI partnership, valued at approximately $10 billion, it emphasises ongoing innovation and support for customers and partners. As Altman and Brockman embark on leading Microsoft's advanced AI research team, the industry will be watching closely to see what the high-profile figures can do with Microsoft's resources at their disposal. The industry will also be observing whether OpenAI can maintain its success under different leadership. Extracting text from all web-pages provided

Now that I know the extraction functions work like a charm, it's time to perform the extraction iteratively on all elements of the Link dataset provided.

To do so, I create a variable `x` that starts from 0 - which will be iterated for each link in the list. The `element` variable could be used, I know - but I am a C guy, and I like to C (see) important variables, heh. Don't judge!

Then, I define the `df_contents` list that will contain all extracted text from each web-page.

Then, I simply iterate through each element and extract the information from it, if it is possible to access and if it contains relevant data. This is simply the test done above, on a random link - but done on all of the links in the dataset you provided.

I also use a try-except pair to simply pass on the links that cannot be extracted, and proceed to extract those who are able to be extracted.

x=0 df_contents=[]
for element in df.iterrows():
    try:
        url = df["Link"][x]
        scraped_text = urllib.request.urlopen(url).read() df_contents.append(text_from_html(scraped_text))
        x=x+1
    except:
        print("(" ,x, ")", "This website could not be scraped->
",df["Link"][x])
        x=x+1

End of Web Scraping Part

Name Entity Recognition Using spacy

For this task, we are going to use the `spacy` library from python, and a pre-trained transformer provided by them, called `en_core_web_trf`. This is a bigger stronger version of Transformers, compared to the "fast" version they classically provide.

The model can be found at this link \(click\), if you want to look at it.

Other pre-trained models can also be used, but let's hope this one will do the job.

I will first try to extract for a single element (text) from the `df_contents` list, and if that works, I will iteratively extract the rest.

#to install spacy run below
#!pip3 install spacy
import spacy

this is used to download the needed transformer model
#!python -m spacy download en_core_web_trf

#loading the model
nlp = spacy.load('en_core_web_trf')

#defining the category -1 in this case, PRODUCT
category = ["PRODUCT"]

```
we take one element from the list
test1 = df_contents[1]

Now we tokenize the text
doc = nlp(test1)
```

Now that we have tokenized the text using the `en_core_web_trf`, we can extract the relevant information we want (the category defined above).

We do that iteratively for each `PRODUCT` we extracted from that text.

Identifying named entities from the text
entities = []
for ent in doc.ents:
    if ent.label_ in category:
        entities.append((ent.text, ent.label_))
```

Now, if everything went alright, we can print all of the products extracted.

for entity, category in entities:
    print(f"{entity}:{category}")
```

```
Cirrus:PRODUCT
Beadlight:PRODUCT
Beadlight:PRODUCT
Cirrus:PRODUCT
Beadlight:PRODUCT
Beadlight:PRODUCT
```

We can also visualize the results using the `spacy` library.

```
spacy.displacy.render(doc, style="ent")
<IPython.core.display.HTML object>

Iteratively extracting all of the products from all of the extracted data

Everything is now set, and I can start extracting iteratively from all links.

To do that, we create a for function to do just that, using the code above.

extracted_products=[]
y=0
for element in df_contents:
```

```

doc = nlp(df_contents[y])
Identifying named entities from the text
entities = []
for ent in doc.ents:
    if ent.label_ in category:
        entities.append((ent.text,ent.label_))
extracted_products.append(entities)
y=y+1

Visualizing the result

Now that's done, let's print and see the final result!

Below, you will see a list for each link in the list, from the first to the last.

z = 0
for element in extracted_products:
    print("The extracted products for link >>>",z,"<<< are:\n",extracted_products[z]) z = z+1
    print("\n \n")

```

We can also simply print all of the extracted products, as seen below. Just need to do a bit of magic with 2 for loops and some counter variables :)!

a=0
for el in extracted_products:
    extract1 = extracted_products[a] b=0
    for el2 in extract1:
        print(extract1[b])
        b=b+1
    a=a+1

Final Words

This was quite an interesting project, which actually thought me how to extract cleaner text than I had before. I used to try a worse technique when extracting html pages, which wasn't that good in returning clean text. Now I learned how to do it better!

About your suggestion of using PySpark - that is what I tried doing the first time. However, for some reason that eludes me, my dual-boot linux distro broke, and I cannot access it, so I would need to reinstall.

I tried doing it with PySpark on Windows, and set up all environment variables, installed all of the things needed and it still didn't work - so I gave up on it.

I will try it again after I fix my Linux Dual-Boot, and will do the same NER as I did here - maybe with a custom trained network, this time.

Anyhow, it was a nice project. I look forward to working with you, if I am selected as a candidate and if everything I did here was OK.
